

Summary of the Season and Tackle Sale

This was very much an informal get together and gave members the opportunity to discuss techniques, hear how the club's teams have performed and ask questions.

It was also advertised as an evening to bring along any tackle or fly tying materials that you no longer needed, and there were plenty of bargains to be had. Bargain of the evening was a new Airflo Boat Seat which Alan Briggs had purchased and then decided he didn't want. Cost new around £150, sold for £60 to Chris McLeod.

Several quality fly rods were bought along by Allan Sefton including prototypes which also went at low prices. If you are into fly tying, there was plenty of material to select from; everything from Arctic Fox to Zonker strips.

The sale was so popular that it was decided that members can bring along items to every meeting if they wish. Just put your name on it and a price. 10% to the club funds please.
